Mr. Bryan and entered the house.
Inside were Judge D. Cady Herrick and wife, Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Chase and General Ferdinand P. Earle and wife. James Oliver, sergeant-at-arms of the National Committee, was also present to welcome the candidate. The party sat down to dinner, Senator Hill at the head of the table, with Mr. Bryan on his right and Mrs. Bryan on his left; Judge Herrick, the close personal friend of Cleveland, sat by the side of Mr. Bryan, while Mr. and Mrs. Chase were on the side of the table with Mrs. Bryan; General Earle and Mrs. Earle sat at the end opposite Senator Hill.

thusiasm. Mr. Bryan sald: Fellow-Citizens-In the presence of this immense audieuce it is hardly necessary to announce that the Presidential campaign is open for business. (Applause.) It gives me great pleasure to be permitted to address, even for a short time, the citizens of Al-bany and its vicinity. I esteem it a privilege to be able to defend, in your presence, the policies which I believe will bring prosperity and happiness to the American people.

In this land of free government the people express themselves through party organization. It is the only way in which we can give active force to our convictions. Without party we fight without hope of success. Parties meet in their conventious, adopt their platforms and go forth to the people, appealing for the suffrage of those who believe that through that party and by the policies expressed in that platform they can best serve the country and protect their

The Chicago Platform. The Democratle party at Chicago met in convention, and the majority of the Democrats of the United States, speaking through their legally chosen representatives, inid down a platform and nominated a ticket It is not to be expected that every person will always find in any piatform all that he desires and nothing that he does not like. But when a cittzen comes to vote, he acts with that party and inderses that platform which gives to him the best assurances of securing the most important things he desires.

In a campaign there is always some overshadowing issue; there is always one great paramount question, which, more than any other, will determine the allegiance of those who support the ticket. And in this cam-paign we appeal with confidence to those people who are opposed to a longer continuation of the gold standard policy of the Uni
